An ex-Confederate met him on the An ex-Confederate met him on the avenue and said: 'General, why are you so anxious for a scrap with Spain?' 'Sir,' replied the general, 'it's my trade—my trade.' His daughter said to the general that surely he had had enough of fighting to satisfy any reasonable man from 1861 to 1865, and he should stay at home and let the young men do the 1861 to 1865, and he should stay at home and let the young men do the fighting. 'Now daughter,' said the general. 'If a fish had been out of the water 30 odd years and came in sight of a nice looking lake he would wiggle a little, at any rate, wouldn't he?' And then the old warrior did wiggle into the bright of the fish. into the thickest of the fight.

Knew the Preacher Was Mistaken.

A writer in the Boston Transcript, lescribing "Scrub Oaks," a settle-ment of undesirable people in south-astern Massachusetts, tells a tale of the death of one of the residents and the efforts of a frank spoken preacher among them to point a moral. After the reading of a portion of Scripture and the making of a prayer, the biographical part of the sermon began, in which attention was called to the angodiy lives of the "Scrub Oakers" in general, and the deceased in particular, with the starting conclusion. "And I have no doubt that the late Mr. W— is even now gnashing his teeth in hell!"
